

DELGADO CITY PARK CELEBRATES EARTH DAY APRIL 22

Delgado's City Park Campus will celebrate Earth Day this year on Apr. 22, the traditional date for Earth Day.

The following organizations will be on campus, behind Building One, from 11:00-2:00 p.m.:

The Alliance for Affordable Energy

Green Light New Orleans

The National Park Service (Jean Lafitte National Historical Park and Preserve)

The Green Project

The New Orleans Food and Farm Network

The Lake Ponchartrain Basin Foundation

Additionally, two of Delgado's academic programs, Biology and Horticulture, will be represented to reach out to new students who might be interested in environmentally-related careers.

Come and learn how to save money on energy costs.

If you are rebuilding, the Green Project can offer you ways to use recycled materials.

Worried about Lake Pontchartrain after the Spillway was opened?

If you are interested in community gardens in New Orleans, stop by the New Orleans Food and Farm Network's table, and take some time to discover the national park in your backyard.

Come visit all our participants, pick up some information and learn how to go green!
